

ATTORNEYS GENERAL IN 8 STATES DEMAND JUSTICE FROM FEDEX GROUND

Attorneys General from eight different states notified FedEx Ground that they intend to take action to protect the interests of their states and drivers from FedEx Ground's misclassification of drivers. Those states are Montana, Iowa, New Jersey, Kentucky, Missouri, Ohio, Rhode Island and Vermont. Writing as a group, the Attorney Generals stated that they have important and unique interests and concerns that they want to bring to the forefront. Citing a broad range of interests, they note particularly workers' compensation insurance, unemployment insurance, wage and hour protections and civil rights protections. The eight states feel it is more efficient to work together to address changes in FedEx Ground's business model.

Leading the group of 8 Attorneys General are Steve Bullock of Montana and Richard Cordray of Ohio.

It is important to note that these states have joined a host of others which have questioned FedEx Ground's "business model". In addition to the over 50 state law suits that are consolidated in our litigation, the AGs join other lawsuits and state agency claims. As the chorus of voices increases to challenge FedEx Ground's illegal misclassification plan, we will keep you apprised of developments.
